

Prof. Dr. Alexander Krouglov, Dr. habil. Sociology. A graduate of the Herzen State Pedagogical University of Russia put a significant amount of effort into the development of the University and the expansion of programs and areas of educational training in it, becoming one of the founders and leaders of such structures as the Center «Russian Studies», Laboratory of Legal Informatics, Laboratory of Legal Conflictology, Institute of International Relations. He made a great contribution to the opening of one of the most popular educational programs of Herzen University in Conflictology. In scientific terms, for the first time coined and introduced into domestic scientific use the term «Computer-mediated Communication» (CMC) and considered the process of formation of a new paradigm of scientific research based on the application of information computer technology. Author of numerous academic works and articles on the role and impact of ICT on science, education and implementation of the sustainable development's model for the contemporary information society.

E-mail: alkrouglov@herzen.spb.ru